

Abstract of the Invention

A high-power, liquid-cooled, multi-layer winding inductive device that has a region of interspersed winding layers and directed coolant flow over the interspersed windings to improve heat transfer and device life.